Lane, Ramp Closures this Weekend on Outbound I-290 for New Traffic Pattern at the Jane Byrne Interchange

UPDATE: This press release was sent Nov. 2 to announce lane and ramp closures at the Jane Byrne Interchange, in Chicago, Saturday, Nov. 4.

Due to inclement weather this past weekend, the closures were postponed and will take place tonight.

The updated closures will take place as follows:

- Starting just before midnight on Monday, Nov. 6, the westbound Eisenhower Expressway/Congress Parkway will be reduced to one lane from west of Wells Street to Halsted Street. The entrance ramp from Wacker Drive to the westbound Eisenhower also will be closed.
- By 12:01 a.m. Tuesday, the westbound Eisenhower/Congress Parkway will be fully closed from Wells Street to Halsted Street. A posted detour will direct traffic to go southbound on Wells Street, west on Harrison Street, south on Des Plaines Street, west on Roosevelt Road and north on Ashland Avenue to enter the westbound Eisenhower.

The stage change will be completed by 5 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 7.

In the new lane configuration, traffic will use the newly-constructed westbound bridges on westbound Interstate 290, maintaining the same two-lane capacity in the outbound direction. The Canal Street entrance ramp to the westbound Eisenhower will remain closed for the duration of the project. A posted detour will direct traffic to enter the westbound Eisenhower at Racine Avenue.
